

New City Zoning Law To Become Effective In 30 Days

Circleville city council Tuesday turned a city zoning plan into a law.

The bill, which provides for five zones, two of which are residential, one commercial, one industrial and an unrestricted district, was passed with only one dissenting vote.

The negative was turned in by Councilman Boyd Horn, who declared:

"There's too much of Joe Stalin in that bill."

In addition, Horn said the law was "too one-sided," there were "too many loopholes in it," and he doubted if more than "10 percent of the citizens will understand it."

"If the citizens would get out and see some of that stuff," he went on, "it would open their eyes. At least half of it ought to be taken out. Some of it is rotten. I suppose there's better than 12,000 words there. It's bad business."

Other councilmen pointed out that citizens were given an opportunity to express their likes or dislikes of the bill during a well-advertised public hearing held last month.

No one showed up at that meeting.

The ordinance, an affair of 34 typewritten pages, took one hour to read. It becomes effective in 30 days.

A complete text of the ordinance is scheduled to be carried as a legal notice in the columns of The Circleville Herald. Council Clerk Fred Nicholas, who said the measure was one of the most lengthy handled in his 40-odd years as clerk, indicated publication would be ordered within a week.

Roughly, the bill sets up an industrial zone which takes in the area adjacent to railroad property, commercial zones located in the center, south and extreme east portions of the city. The rest is residential.

The bill is broken down into sections. Section one defines the terms used in the bill. For instance, an apartment is defined as "a room or suite of rooms used as a single family dwelling including bath and culinary accommodations, located in a building in which are two or more such rooms or suites."

A district is defined as "a section on the city—for which the regulation governing the height, use and area of building and premises are the same."

The ordinance provides that the five classes of districts set off on the "zone map" are:

1. District A—single and double residence.
2. District B—multiple residence.
3. District C—Commercial.
4. District D—Industrial.
5. District E—unrestricted.

In District A, the ordinance prohibits the use of buildings or premises for any other purpose but for single or two family dwellings, churches, farming, libraries, recreation centers, reservoirs, schools, telephone exchanges, temporary buildings for construction purposes, garages, and professional offices.

In District B permitted uses are multiple residences, apartment houses, apartment hotels, boarding and lodging houses, hotels, hospitals, lodge buildings and philanthropic institutions.

In District C land may be used for any purpose permitted in A and B. The ordinance lists 57 prohibited uses ranging from assaying, other than gold and silver, to "those uses which may be noxious or offensive by reason of the emission of odors, dust, smoke, gas or noise."

In District D land may be used for all purposes listed in the other three. The bill, however, lists a large number of prohibited uses, ranging from abattoirs to match manufacture,

'Bo' Brown Killed In Korean War

A 19-year-old Circleville Marine Corps private has become Pickaway County's first death resulting from the Korean War.

He is Pfc. Donald R. "Bo" Brown, son of Mrs. Herman Morris of 348 Barnes avenue. The Circleville Marine was reported killed in action while serving in Korea Sept. 11. He had been in Korea little more than a month before he died.

Brown attended Circleville high school, leaving in his senior year to join the Marines. While in school he was active in athletics, specializing in track events.

The Circleville man enlisted into the Marines last January and was trained in Parris Island, S. C. He was shipped into the Korean War area earlier this Summer.

Details of the Circleville Marine's death were not made known in a telegram received by his mother, other than that he died in an action. He will receive temporary burial near where he was killed.

Surviving him are his mother, Mrs. Stella Brown Morris; three

$65,000 PROJECT TALKED Council's Sewer Story Fails To Impress Group

The perennial question of where to get the money to install a sanitary sewer to drain the northwest section of Circleville arose again Tuesday to plague city council.

Difficulty of the problem was accentuated by the presence of a dozen citizens from the area the sewer would service.

The group sat impassively while the city fathers discussed somewhat nebulous schemes for raising the money, grew restive as the solons waxed oratorical over the city's lack of cash and stamped angrily out of the room when council turned the problem over to a joint committee.

From a report submitted by Ervin Leist, water and sewage department manager, the city fathers—and the dozen citizens—learned the cost of such a sewer would be about $65,000.

TO RAISE the money, sewage revenue mortgage bonds could be issued. The issue would be for about $70,000.

The cost of such bonds would be about $4,900 a year. That would mean that sewage rates for the entire city would have to be raised from $6 per year to $8.10 in order to pay off the bonds.

City Solicitor George Gerhardt pointed out that the issuance of such bonds "are a different proposition from ordinary bonds."

He suggested that council would be wise to hire one of the bonding companies to see the matter through from beginning to end if it was decided to go through with the matter.

"It's a very complicated procedure," he said. "You see, you issue the bonds and then you issue what amounts to a mortgage on the sewer plant."

Councilman Walden Reichelderfer asked why it would not be possible to issue ordinary bonds, "then raise the sewage rates to pay them off." Interest rate on ordinary bonds, which are covered by taxation, is cheaper.

HE WAS TOLD that there would not be enough leeway within the 10-mill limitation to do that.

Councilman George Crites said he believed the best way to raise the money would be by a tax levy outside the 10-mill limit voted on either in a special election or during next year's primaries. He pointed out that the preparation of sewer mortgage revenue bonds would take about eight months and that the levy could be put up for vote before then.

"I'm afraid a levy for that purpose wouldn't pass," commented.

City School Cafe Opening Being Delayed

Circleville high school's proposed new cafeteria program probably will not be placed into actual operation until November or December.

Board Clerk Virgil Cress told the Circleville board of education Tuesday night that work is progressing slowly on the new program and that it probably will not be ready for at least "a month or two."

Cress explained that one of the early holdbacks has been the plumbing, which had to be approved by the state department of health, while other similar holdbacks may face the completion of the project.

However, all necessary equipment for the proposed lunchroom has been purchased and is ready to install, Cress said.

The board clerk added that he was not sure to date whether Circleville has received permission to set a school lunchroom program into operation.

"I have received application papers and a month-by-month report schedule to fill in as the program progresses," Cress said, "but as far as whether we have received permission, I just don't know."

City Councilmen, State Auditor Pointing Fingers

Circleville city council and Ohio's state auditor were embroiled in a rhubarb Wednesday—all as the result of each side pointing an accusing finger at the other.

The debate started Tuesday night when council tried to explain why it had no funds to construct a sewer to serve the northwest part of the city, an area which long has been without—and has angrily demanded—some sanitary facilities.

Pointing out that all costs have skyrocketed, the city fathers said they would be unable to swing the $65,000 construction job without a tax levy or a bond issue.

Increasing city operating costs were cited by Councilman E. L. Montgomery who pointed to charges made by the state auditor's office in annual audits.

"IT USED TO be that the examiners would come down here and spend two or three days, and the books were audited. But that has changed. In 1935 it cost the city $314 to have the books audited. It rose in 1945 to $887. But in 1949 the cost to the city was $1,497.30," Montgomery said, adding:

"The examiners go over the books and findings are put down, but nothing is ever done about it."

He blamed this state of affairs on State Auditor Joseph Ferguson, who, he declared, "is nothing but a cheap politician."

Red China Premier Calls For Opposition To U.S.

TOKYO, Sept. 19—Red China today branded the United States as the enemy of the peoples of Asia and said America is preparing for "another war of aggression in the Far East."

Foreign Minister Chou En-lai, the number two Chinese Communist, rejected the San Francisco treaty of peace as "illegal and invalid" and called for an Asian crusade against "American imperialism."

Much of Chou's statement followed earlier propaganda broadcasts, but it was given great importance because it was an official utterance of Red China's so-called Peoples Government and thus may portend some new Communist move.

Observers recalled that an earlier statement by Chou foreshadowed the entry of Chinese troops in the Korean fighting last October.

ALLIED OBSERVERS felt that today's statement might indicate some new strategy by Soviet Russia and Red China to offset effects of the 49-nation peace treaty and the U. S.-Japan security pact.

Chou called on all nations which oppose these agreements to work with China "to check the danger of war expansion in the Far East created by the San Francisco peace treaty with Japan and the U. S. Japan Bilateral Security Pact."

The vice-premier and foreign minister for the Peiping regime said the two treaties gave "unmistakable evidence that the U. S. government is preparing for another war of aggression in Asia and the Far East."

Chou said that his government "cannot recognize (the treaties) in any way." He issued a call for Asia-wide resistance to the United States, saying:

CONTEMPT RAPS PILE UP

Bookie Boss Blows Top, Refuses Give Testimony

NEW YORK, Sept. 19—Ex-bookie czar Harry Gross, acting like a man demented, tried to make a break today from the courtroom where 18 New York police are on trial on graft charges.

Gross was seized forcibly by court guards and thrust back into the witness chair, screaming protests.

"I won't testify!" he shouted time and again.

Furiously, Judge Samuel Leibowitz told Gross, "you'll stay in that chair if I have to chain you to it!"

His break came after he again refused to testify as star witness against the policeman accused of taking graft from the gambler's $20 million-a-year betting ring.

Gross and his family have been the targets of at least six anonymous death threats should he testify at the current trial. At the outset of the bookie's explosion today Judge Leibowitz asked him if he had been threatened by anyone in the courtroom.

Harriman Cool In Iran Plan To End Oil Dispute

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19—Presidential Adviser W. Averell Harriman has refused flatly to forward to Britain an Iranian demand for settlement of the oil nationalization feud within 15 days.

The State Department reported Harriman's action today. The U. S. mediator in the oil dispute refused to forward the Iranian ultimatum because he feared it would "only aggravate an already serious situation."

As a basis for new talks, Iran proposed:

1. A group of British and "neutral" foreign experts to operate the oil projects under an Iranian board.
2. A determination of the amount of compensation to the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. on the basis of the quoted value of the company's shares prior to nationalization.
3. Iran will sell Britain 10 million tons of oil—its normal import consumption—at prevailing prices.
4. If these terms are not accepted within 15 days after Britain receives them, the residence permits of Britons now working in the oil fields will be lifted.

Armistice Talks May Be Reopened

Allies Admit Second Kaesong Infraction

TOKYO, Sept. 19—The Communist command in Korea tonight summoned a new liaison meeting for tomorrow morning at which time the Reds may possibly reply to an Allied bid for reopening of the long-dormant armistice talks.

The session was set for 6 a. m. Thursday (3 p. m. Wednesday EST) after the Allies admitted a second breach of Kaesong's neutrality Tuesday when four unarmed Red (Republic of Korea) medical personnel wandered into the conference area.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's public information chief, Brig. Gen. Frank Allen, announced receipt of a message at 7 p. m. in which the Red command requested Thursday's liaison meeting at Pan Mun Jom near Kaesong.

Allen said the Communists gave no hint as to the purpose of the meeting.

However, the Allies have been awaiting for three days an answer to a note from Ridgway proposing that the North Korean-Chinese command end its suspension of the armistice parley and call a liaison session to arrange for resumption of the talks.

THREE ALLIED newsmen, Allen announced, will be permitted to accompany the UN liaison team when it proceeds early Thursday to Pan Mun Jom from the UN armistice base at Munsan.

Newsmen were not allowed to go to Pan Mun Jom and Kaesong Wednesday when UN and Red liaison officers met for a joint on-the-spot investigation of the latest neutrality infringement charged by the Communists. The reporters were barred by the UN command at the specific request of the Reds.

Announcing the outcome of the joint inquiry, Ridgway's Tokyo headquarters said earlier Wednesday evening that the four "military personnel" described by the Reds as having entered the neutral zone were Red medical corps soldiers.

The announcement said the Communists at Wednesday's meeting did not broach the subject of resuming the armistice conference. This dispelled earlier speculation that the Reds would use the occasion to probe chances of reviving the parley.

The headquarters release said the four Red medical corpsmen who inadvertently rode into the Kaesong area were "part of an anti-epidemic unit armed with nothing more dangerous than DDT."

RIDGWAY'S announcement said the four ROK medical corpsmen had been dispatched to spray South Korean army billets, but "were unable to locate their units and inadvertently entered the neutral zone."

They "lost their way yesterday afternoon," the announcement related, and were detained overnight for 20 hours by the Communist authorities at Kaesong.

The four men were released Wednesday morning to an Allied liaison group which met for an hour and 55 minutes with Communist officers at Kaesong for a joint investigation and discussion of the episode.

The investigation "took place without incident and in an atmosphere almost completely devoid of tension," said the statement from Ridgway's offices.

The entry of the South Koreans into the Kaesong zone was the second infraction of the neutral area admitted by the UN command.

Last week the Allies acknowledged that one of their night-flying airmen had mistakenly strafed the Kaesong area Sept. 10 without inflicting casualties or damage.

Vice Adm. Charles Turner Joy, head of the UN cease-fire delegation, apologized for that incident and promised "disciplinary action" against the erring pilot.

Altogether, the Red command has charged 12 allied "violations of Kaesong's neutrality."

5 Are Arrested For Overloads On Trucks Here

Four Pickaway County area men and a juvenile were arrested Tuesday for operating overloaded gravel trucks on Route 23 north of Circleville.

The men were Ronald Robinson and Lewis Hardesty of Laurelsville, Wilbur Graham of Derby and Carl Martin of Mt. Sterling Route 3.

All four men were fined $25 and costs each in the court of Ashville Mayor Elmer Malone for operating gravel trucks which were overloaded but which had no more than a ton overload.

The juvenile, a 17-year-old boy, was processed in Pickaway County juvenile court and fined $15 and costs. In addition, he was lectured about operating a truck without a chauffeur's license, which are available only to persons older than 18.

All five drivers were arrested by State Highway Patrolmen Clyde Wells and Jack Binkley.

The increase, including 118 dead, reflected the gradual resumption of intense fighting since hopes for an armistice in Korea began to taper off.

The previous week's increase was 596. The low for the week of Aug. 16 was 256. The average of casualties before armistice negotiations was about 1,500 a week.

The new total includes 12,392 killed in action; 58,527 wounded, of whom 1,406 have died; and 12,338 missing, of whom 142 are known to have died.

Yates went into the sewer to save Williams and was also overcome by gas. The pair drowned in ten feet of water.

England Hears Elections Near

LONDON, Sept. 19—The London Daily Mirror said today that Prime Minister Clement Attlee has informed King George that he will call for new general elections on Oct. 25.

The Mirror, a pro-Labor newspaper, said that Attlee informed the king of his plans during a visit to Buckingham Palace last night.

Attlee's Labor Party has been in power since the Summer of 1945, winning the latest general election in February 1950 by a sharply reduced margin.

Yesterday Gross won an adjournment until this morning after an hysterical bout of weeping which he said was caused by a stomach ailment that made him nervous.

The $64 question which set Gross off was a demand that he name a man with whom he had a date in 1942 to set up police protection for his then-expanding bookie syndicate. This was the question that cut off the gambler's "song" again this morning.

Gross has pleaded guilty to 66 counts of bookmaking and one of conspiracy. He faces a maximum prison term of 68 years. The 18 cop defendants can get three-year terms if convicted for conspiring to obstruct justice.

Senate Hoping To Hike Taxes By $5.5 Billion

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19—The Senate Finance Committee reported officially today that its tax increase bill will raise $5.5 billion a year in new revenue.

Here is how the Senate bill breaks down in revenue increases:

Individual income tax, two billion 367 million dollars; corporation tax, two billion 60 million; excise taxes, one billion 275 million; tax exempt organizations, 150 million.

The Senate measure would increase revenues by only $2.7 billion in fiscal 1952 because the changes are not all effective in fiscal 1952 and because collections lag behind federal liabilities.

On the other hand, senators said the House bill would increase collections in fiscal 1952 by about $4.9 billion.

The Senate bill boosts individual taxes for most taxpayers by 11 percent effective on Nov. 1, 1951, and raises the rate for corporations above $25,000 income from 47 to 52 percent.

The Senate committee also raised the excess profits tax ceiling to about 69 percent and increased excise rates on alcoholic beverages, tobacco, gasoline, automobiles, and electric, oil and gas appliances.

It added a gambling tax adopted by the House and tightened exemptions of farm and consumer cooperatives.

Alarmist Rumors Regarding King Are Scotched

LONDON, Sept. 19—Sources close to specialists attending ailing King George VI declared today there is "no justification" for alarmist rumors that the king has cancer or tuberculosis.

The informants said that examinations which were conducted over the last three weeks showed no grounds for suspecting such diseases "at this moment."

The reference in the physicians' bulletin to "structural changes in the lung" was said by these sources to be concerned possibly with a small area of the lung failing to function.

Such an eventuality could arise from shrinkage of the walls of the lung and the development of cavities in the bronchial tubes resulting in a persistent lung condition over a lengthy period.

The condition would be similar to the bronchial trouble suffered in the last years of his life by King George V, father of the present monarch.

Doctors are determined that the king must cooperate fully in the treatment and cut his public duties to a minimum, a course likely to encounter stern resistance from the ruler.

Council's Sewer Story Fails To Impress Group

ment. Montgomery declared that the city is receiving the same money in taxes that it received in 1940, yet the cost of city government has shot up.

"The state legislature passes laws with good intent, but these laws take money away from the city," he said.

Critics held out the promise that if a proposed one-mill levy for current operations is approved by voters next November, "it might be possible to squeeze enough out of it" to pay for the sewer.

All of which made little impression on the delegation from the northwest.

"Do you suppose," wondered one, "we could sue the city if something is not done about the smell out there?"

No modern sanitary facilities exist in that area.

"You can't get blood out of a turnip," guffawed Montgomery.

Upshot was that the matter was referred to the service and finance committees for further study. The committees were instructed to bring back a solution next meeting.

But the delegation from the northwest was far from satisfied. Its members made a angry remarks as they stamped out of the room.

CD Ground Observers Meet

A meeting of Pickaway County's ground observer corps, working with the Civil Defense program, was held in Memorial Hall Tuesday evening.

Supervisors from four county observer areas were present to receive instructions on how the group should function in the event of war. Instructions were given by a representative of the observer control center, Fort Hayes, Columbus.

An instructional motion picture film was shown.

SCIENTIST VIEWS FUTURE

Next 75 Years Destined To Be Great, Expert Says

Editor's Note: Science long ago proved that its horizons are limitless. In the following article, a pioneer atomic scientist, tells in his own words what he thinks lies ahead now in scientific accomplishment for mankind. Dr. A. V. Grosse, the author, was one of the eight original scientists who began atomic energy work at Columbia university before the Manhattan Project for development of the atomic bomb was launched.

By DR. A. V. GROSSE
President of Research Institute
Temple University

NEW YORK, Sept. 19—I foresee in the future—perhaps within the next 75 years—manned rocket trips to the moon and to the great beyond.

I foresee the synthetic, economical production of food in great abundance to raise the world's standard of living to higher levels than we now know. I foresee the development of packaged atomic energy suitable for daily household use.

FOODS OF THE future will be produced synthetically and cheaply from carbon dioxide gas, (which is produced by burning any combustible material containing carbon) water and ammonia.

Of course solar energy is necessary for this thing, and I can see in the future that perhaps large shallow basins, filled with water and containing mineral ingredients in amounts necessary for perfect growth, will be scattered over the landscape, producing foodstuffs in great abundance.

The assimilation of carbon dioxide will be accelerated by saturating the basis with artificial carbon dioxide and taking advantage of all the knowledge now being gained, and that will be gained in coming years, from the studies on how the sun's energy is accumulated by plants.

These studies are now being supported by funds from the Atomic Energy Commission and use radioactive carbon as a tool to trace the steps by which carbon dioxide is converted into plant material.

I believe that within the next 25 years this method of growth of foodstuffs will compete in certain areas with the old methods of the farmer.

In 75 years from now a very substantial amount of the world's total food may be grown by such artificial, synthetic method.

THIS WILL PERMIT, of course, a raising of the standard of living to higher levels than now prevalent, particularly among the large masses of humanity in Asia and other underdeveloped countries of the world. After the present period of instability and suspicion has been resolved, real peaceful and practical uses of atomic energy will rapidly develop.

I particularly see the possibility of having packaged atomic energy without the present harmful radiations, such as neutrons, gamma rays and beta rays.

This packaged atomic energy will consist principally of what scientists call "alpha emitters" and will permit controlled generation of power for every day uses in the household.

Regardless, however, of the benefits of atomic energy, the human race still will have to struggle with its daily chores.

At the same time, the highly pessimistic predictions of some that all civilization will be destroyed by atomic warfare is not going to occur, although the political leaders of the world should continue to exert every effort to avoid atomic warfare in any form.

IN VIEW OF new possibilities we now have with the development of atomic energy and rockets, it would be wise for science to explore the feasibility of travelling to other planets, or at least getting away from the earth's surface to an artificial satellite of the earth, such as a space platform.

There is no question that atomic energy could power such a rocket, although some purely chemical fuels may give it a close race.

Such fuels might be liquid hydrogen combined with liquid fluorine, the latter being the most powerful chemical known to man.

The first rocket to the moon of course does not need to be manned, and there may be some unsuccessful attempts.

But experience gained with unmanned rockets will permit, eventually, the construction and operation of rockets for human travel to the moon and to the great beyond.

Hominy Anderson Turns In His Resignation As City Councilman

Councilman Ray (Hominy) Anderson Tuesday night supplied the punctuation for his career as a member of Circleville's legislative body.

It was a period. The chunky southerner asked that his resignation be read.

"And if you'll just give it a great big yes," he told his colleagues, "it will make me happy."

His request came at the end of a meeting that saw passage of a bill zoning the city into five districts. Previously, Anderson had said he would stay on as councilman until the zoning ordinance was passed.

His resignation was not accepted unanimously. There was even a considerable pause before Councilman Joe Brink arose to make a motion to accept it.

THERE WAS an even greater pause before the motion was

Inactive Guard Members Subject To Federal Call

COLUMBUS, Sept. 19—Ohio National Guardsmen who dropped out of units of the 37th Infantry Division for drill purposes and yet retained a military status were informed today they face active duty.

Just how many men would be affected was undisclosed during a conference of unit commanders who met at Ft. Hayes yesterday to receive instructions for their Jan. 15 mobilization.

A news release issued by the division said they are to be picked up when the division moves to Camp Polk, La., for training. The headquarters announcement said:

"All enlisted men now in the inactive National Guard will be transferred back into the active National Guard and their former units, except those whose enlistments expire prior to Jan. 15, 1952.

"All officers in the inactive National Guard will be screened to determine if vacancies exist, which they are qualified to fill, within their former unit or the division."

Maj. Gen. Leo M. Kreber, commanding general of the division, stressed the four-month alert period given to the division to enable officers and men to attend service schools before federal induction.

seconded by Councilman Walden Reichelderfer. And when Council President Pro Tem Ray Cook called for a voice vote on the matter—there were no voices.

Cook ordered the roll called. The vote was five to two, with Councilmen E. L. Montgomery and George Crites registering negatives.

In his letter of resignation Anderson said:

"I am sorry that it has become necessary for me to submit my resignation effective immediately. I have always enjoyed working for the city and with my fellow council members, but my business (federal grain inspection) in Columbus requires too much of my time.

"Lately, I have not been able to do as good a job as I should have, so I think it best that I resign in order that you can appoint someone who will be able to help you more than I do."

Anderson, who was a council member for about eight years, was present as a legislator during the war and was a guiding hand in three laws that made major changes in local government.

These changes were the taking over of the waterworks from private ownership, the switch of Berger hospital from city control to joint city-county management and Tuesday night's passage of a zoning ordinance.

ANDERSON, who has never taken the trouble to soften the impact of a frank statement, has provided observers of local government with some colorful episodes. He has thrown few bouquets, has received few in return.

But when the voter was consulted at the polls, Anderson was always a popular man.

Opera Singer's Death Probed

ATLANTA, Sept. 19—Chemical tests will delay an inquiry into the circumstances causing the death of Mrs. Suzanne Keener Barr, former Metropolitan Opera singer, who died Monday in Atlanta.

Fulton County Coroner Ed Almand said yesterday the inquest will be delayed "several days" pending the results of chemical tests.

Mrs. Barr, a native of Pittsburgh, who moved to Atlanta about 10 years ago upon retirement, died after being taken to a hospital for emergency treatment.

Audubon Year Is Proclaimed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19—President Truman has honored the memory of John James Audubon, famed naturalist and portrayer of North American bird life, by proclaiming 1951 as Audubon Centennial Year.

In his proclamation, the President urged all Americans to aid the government efforts in protecting and conserving America's dwindling wild life.

Dies May Seek Senate Seat

JASPER, Tex., Sept. 19—Former Texas Congressman Martin Dies sought what he termed "adequate campaign funds" today to launch a 1952 race for the Senate seat held by Tom Connally.

Dies, former chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, said last night that he will run for congressman at his own expense if he is unable to raise funds for the senatorial campaign.

The ex-congressman who now practices law at Lufkin said he will oppose President Truman's "pet measures."

SOME WEAR FALSE DENTURES

Teeth Of Local Children Said To Be Near Average

The teeth of Circleville children are not much better and not much worse than those of youngsters throughout the rest of the United States.

That is the opinion of local dentists, who point out that only a very small percentage of Circleville school children—about half a dozen—wear false teeth.

One dentist said that tests indicate the teeth of school children here "may be a little better than those of Columbus school kids."

Nevertheless, he said he was "little amazed at the poor condition of teeth in pre-school children in Circleville."

But on the whole, he went on, conditions here are about the same as throughout the country, with causes of tooth decay in Circleville no different from the causes that exist nationally.

AMONG THE causes are heredity, faulty nutrition, poor mouth hygiene, childhood diseases and insufficient dental treatment.

Local dentists point out that it is not always necessary for everyone to see his dentist twice a year.

At the same time, dentists are opposed to patients waiting until a tooth begins to ache before making the visit. The problem of how often a dental checkup should be made is one that varies with the individual, and one that should be worked out between the individual and his dentist.

One dentist said that while the effectiveness of modern decay preventives (powders and pastes) has not been proved in local dentists' offices, it does not mean they lack value.

"We recommend them to our patients, even though their effectiveness has not been proved here yet," he said.

Another dentist said that university experiments have proved that proper use of the tooth brush can achieve the same results as ammoniated powders and pastes.

"The main thing in proper mouth hygiene is the tooth brush and the way it is used," he said. "The teeth should be brushed with an up and down motion, and the gums should be massaged gently."

The dentist also recommended brushing the tongue—gently—and the roof of the mouth—also gently—to take away that bad taste in the mouth. It also helps to combat bad breath, he said.

City Auditor's Finance Report OK'd By Council

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

It's distressing to see so many teen-age boys and girls quitting school. Among the reasons are that they find school dull or hard going and are lured by big wages they can earn (which they usually spend on a car, finer clothes and more good times). Not many quit high school because of actual economic need or are nearly all of them dullards.

Obviously, the school and the home can do more to win these youths to continue their schooling — the school as it adapts its curriculum and program better to the individual needs of the students; and the home as it inspires these youths with ambition and wins them to keep their attention on the more lasting values and to choose to strive toward self-improvement.

Nor should we overlook what some teachers are doing in these directions. Many a youth continues in school even when the going is hard or when some of his pals drop out and choose what seems to them the easy way. Let us show our appreciation to these great teachers, thank God for them and pray that more teachers might emulate them.

Recently, the Office of Education of the Federal Security Agency issued an 86-page report on "Improving School Holding Power," in its campaign to help reduce drop-outs from high schools.

This report summarizes what a large city school system are doing to encourage youth to stay in school. The efforts include trade schools, home life courses, special classes for slow pupils and remedial reading.

ALL THE PUBLIC school systems taking part in this campaign exchange information on the results of their efforts and

Television Stars Are Signed For Pumpkin Show

Performers from the Columbus television station WBNS-TV will appear in Circleville during the four days of the 1951 Pumpkin Show.

Appearing will be Tom Gleba and Jeanne Shea, Pianist Walter Knick and Vocalists Pat Wilson, Bob Marvin and Ray Roese.

They will perform from 9 to 10 p. m. Wednesday, Oct. 17, 8:30 to 9:30 p. m. Thursday and Friday, and from 8 to 9 p. m. Saturday.

Making single appearances during the Pumpkin Show will be "Blackie" Bill Turner, "Wrangler" Dick Zuber, Chet Long, Earl Flora, Roger Garrett and Jean Phair.

their researches on why boys and girls leave school.

An item in the report appealing most to me concerns the efforts of the PTA in Minneapolis, begun a year ago. After the fourth day of school in September, 1950, the school clerk provided a committee of the Parent-Teacher Association with the names, addresses and telephone numbers of all the students over 16 who had not returned to school. As a result of this program, many pupils "checked into the school, sold on the idea of returning urged by the PTA worker."

The remaining 683 drop-outs from the 11 senior high schools were studied by the school counselors. About half of them were found to be out for valid reasons.

Of the rest, about 100 returned to school, attending either day or evening classes. What finer service could a PTA render in any community?

Obviously, Parent-Teacher workers, chiefly parents, learn from such efforts more about the school and its counseling program and sense more keenly what the home can do to cause youths to continue school. Inevitably this information and experience inspire discussion by these mothers in the PTA meetings, when more parents see how they can build better family relations.

As you and I know very well, the happier family relations are, the more parents can do to induce their children to continue in school and succeed at school. (My bulletin, "Parents Can Help Child Succeed at School," may be had by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of this paper.)

Of course, these good family relations are not built in a day. They are best developed over the years since the child's birth.

So every parent, whether the child is 16 years or 16 months of age, can do something now and continue doing something to keep children choosing to continue at school. Practically everything we discuss from day to day in this column is related to this problem.

Rennel Helps Akron Lady LOSE WEIGHT Wears Slim 16 Again

"I think Rennel is a wonderful product," writes Minnie Harmon, 646 Brown St., Akron, Ohio. "I used to wear a size 20 and now wear size 16. I have lost 15 lbs. Not only do I look better, but I feel better."

It's amazing how quickly you can lose unsightly fat at home. Obtain liquid Rennel at your druggist, mix with grapefruit juice as directed and take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it. If you do not lose weight with the very first bottle just return it for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while reducing with Rennel.

Innocent Sign Proven Hoax

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., Sept. 19.—James Gosinski, 27, San Quentin convict, was in isolation today because a guard ignored the "do not disturb" sign he hung on his cell door.

Gosinski, convicted for car theft from San Francisco, pinned the sign to his cell door shortly before noon. A suspicious guard ignored the sign and found a dummy of fluffed-up blankets in the bed.

Gosinski, who was found in the main yard a short time later, hoped to escape the noon check-up and hide in the yard until night when he planned to climb over the wall.

Million Italy Workers Strike

ROME, Sept. 19.—More than a million Italian government workers, including railroad employees, went on a 24-hour strike today for wage increases and a cost-of-living "escalator" arrangement.

Only employees of the foreign ministry remained on their jobs because of the present international tension.

Another strike involving trolley and bus services throughout Italy which was scheduled for Thursday was called off.

Council Passes 2 New Ordinances, Listens To Reading Of 3 Others

Circleville city council Tuesday passed two ordinances, listened to first reading of three others.

The city fathers passed a bill reducing the charge paid each year from the general fund to the waterworks operating fund from $40 to $20.

The reduction was made with the approval of the Huntington National Bank of Columbus, trustees for holders of bonds issued by the city to pay for the waterworks.

The solons also passed an ordinance appropriating $7,000 from the gas tax fund to the service department for labor.

FIRST READING was given to the following bills:

1. An ordinance to appropriate $500 from the general fund to the police department for the overtime fund.

2. A bill to appropriate $800 from the general fund to the police department for the overtime fund.

Dead German Is Made Citizen

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The house has moved to fulfill the last wish of a German refugee who died on Guadalcanal by approving a bill to confer U.S. citizenship upon him posthumously. The measure, sponsored by Rep. McDonough, (R) Calif., would give citizenship to Siegfried Oberdorfer, who was killed on May 20, 1943, while serving as a medical corpsman in the U.S. forces. Shortly before he was killed, Oberdorfer told his commanding officer: "Sir, if I could go into combat as an American citizen I would be the happiest man on earth. My only fear is that I will be killed before that citizenship is granted."

FORTIFIED BY FOOD

COME war or peace the American people will continue to eat well. The enterprise of the American farmer during the current year is being rewarded with crop yields of near-record proportions.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture reports farms are producing the second largest crop of food and fiber products in history. Corn leads off with an estimated yield of more than three billion bushels, approximately the same as last year. Converted into meat, the supply of beef and pork will approach the figures of a year before.

The wheat yield is off a bit, the total being estimated at just under one billion bushels. Yields of all secondary crops are up to or above average. Truck gardeners also had a good year, with yields up 25 percent. Milk production is at record levels.

For most Americans crop statistics hold little interest. But in terms of food and prices they affect everyone. America will not lack for food, thanks to the efforts of those upon the land who remain the bulwark of the nation's strength.

RADIO WEAPON FOR WAR

WHILE Americans have accepted radio as an important adjunct to their lives, radio is also proving a powerful weapon against Communism. Under the auspices of the Crusade for Freedom, which penetrates behind the Iron Curtain with powerful radio stations at Frankfurt and Munich in Germany, the Reds are being hit in a tender spot and the embers of freedom are being stirred for a people almost hopeless in their bondage.

The Russian people are being told the truth about their government. The Communists are depicted in their true light as aggressors against a free world. Developments in Korea are broadcast daily. So effective have these broadcasts been in bringing hope to enslaved Russians and satellites, the Soviet government is protesting against their continuation.

The purpose of the crusade is to let the Russian people know the truth about the present world situation. In modern war weapons other than guns and planes are sometimes effective.

American pilots say they chased a flying saucer which traveled 900 miles an hour. Do we have to go through all that again?

With the cost of living mounting, it is increasingly difficult to keep up with the Joneses. But the Joneses aren't having it too easy, either.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Some months ago, Father Anselm of Graymoor, a Franciscan monk of my acquaintance, came to my house to discuss that surprising hostel where lost men can find a moment in broken lives for retreat and peace. Such charities always need money and Father Anselm suggested that if I wrote a letter, he might raise some. I had never done anything like that before.

While Graymoor never asks a man his religion, his origin, his past, it is an institution managed by Roman Catholic priests. I am not a Roman Catholic. I am a Jew by religion. Yet, charity can know no sectarianism.

I agreed to write a letter and Father Anselm mailed it out on lists he had. Then I began to receive mail. Some wrote that they regretted that they could not contribute. Some resented that they were solicited by a religion other than their own. The interesting phenomenon is that a great many sent their checks to Graymoor. Taxes, high cost of living and other inequities have not lessened the American grace of charity.

Nor are we a sectarian people. Each of us has his own faith, by birth, by adoption, by association. But the differences of belief should not separate us from each other.

That was the essence of the broad attitude of such a religious leader as Roger Williams in the early years of our people on this continent. He wanted men to have the right to sustain their differences if that meant much to them. As long as we are free to choose our own ways of life, we shall never force others into a spiritual or intellectual bondage.

In no country throughout the long history of my faith have we known a freer and more kindly world than in the United States—even before it became the United States. It is true that occasionally one encounters bigotry and even lunacy, but the whole picture from the middle of the 17th Century until today has been one of liberty to live in the faith of our ancestors. Before that, every other consideration becomes trivial.

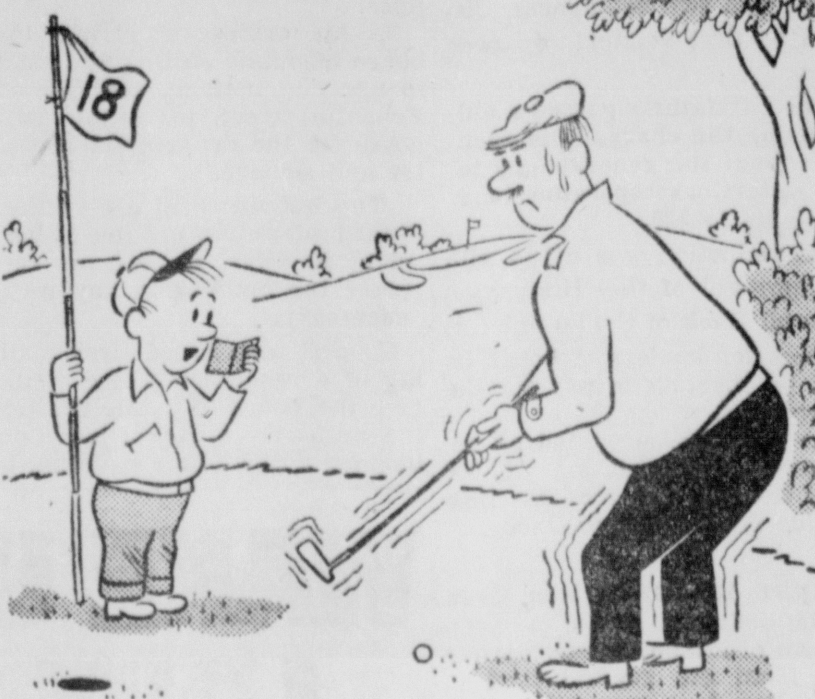

And for this equality in the eyes of the law and for the right to live as one chooses, gratitude can best express itself in the warmest cooperation among all of us without regard to sectarian differences. The best way to defeat the forces of evil now stomping through the world lies in this co-operation. Those who stimulate hatred over differences are aiding those who would destroy our civilization of freedom. My job is to write about the forces and events of these days and that, it may be presumed, has to do with politics and economics and wars. But what happens to man himself? What happens to his personality, his character? In all this welter of words over how governments are to live together in this confused world, we sometimes forget that the most important problem that faces each one of us is how we are to get along with each other and with ourselves.

We all seem to know everything because we can all read and because we listen to millions of words on the radio. But what of the increase of divorce? What of the broken homes—what a silly phrase that? It is not the homes that are broken, but the hearts of little children for whom one flower on the stem of life has withered. What of the young people without guidance who find it so difficult to pass out of the uncertainties of youth to the responsibilities of manhood and womanhood?

Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

"We've got weapons so powerful they frighten us" sounds odd, but that seems to be the story in Washington.

England ran a big fair this year, Paris ran an exposition and Washington ran a temperance and still wakes up screaming in the night.

Two weeks before Margaret Truman sailed for Europe one "informed" administration spokesman was whooping through another big spending bill with the cry that Russia was going to attack Europe any moment.

Margaret went, spent six weeks, came back, celebrated another birthday, was romantically linked with three new young men, made a few more guest appearances and we've got another new big spending bill—that's all.

It doesn't look like Congress ever will get around to a real vacation this year, but the way they've been systematically scared up probably the only place they want to go is under the bed.

But I think we're all interested in these weapons so powerful we can't win a police action.

SYNOPSIS
Harrison Blayde, the socially prominent, fine home in a lovely Southern city, a family which Eden Blayde, the extravagant wife, accepts with poor grace. Her winning protests drive her husband and their children, teen-age Anne and Duke, most to despair. Eden's bitterness centers on her sister-in-law, Laura Blayde, a hard-working, gallant victim of a broken home. Eden resents the family's affection for Laura, and Laura's new-found friendship with handsome Jim Elliot, war-vet hero and also victim of a unfortunate wartime marriage. Highly respected Judge Fowler and his family, have long been friends and neighbors of the Harrison Blaydes.

CHAPTER EIGHT
AN OLD MAID—that's what I'm condemned to be, Ellen was thinking as she went slowly up the stairs. An old maid, fading sweetly, spending a life in dutiful attendance on an invalid mother. Everywhere you looked you saw them, wan, colorless, patient middle-aged women with hopefully touched-up hair and clothes pathetically too young, with too much makeup on their desperately smiling faces. Lost lives, chained to Mamma in a wheel chair.

Oh, God! Ellen stiffened on the landing. I'm wishing her dead! Please, God, forgive me!

There was a long Victorian mirror there, an ornate gilded affair with an eagle on top, and silly-looking gut cherubs decorating the frame. The glass was a trifle misted but clear enough for Ellen to see herself, a tall, grave girl without much animation in her face, a slim, straight body, a nicely rounded bust, tanned arms, indefinitely brown hair and eyes that were too remote, but just now darkly desolate.

Quickly she pulled her lips up at the corners, attempted a gay and youthful smile, but the result was forced and artificial.

"Already," she murmured aloud, "I'm getting that frustrated look!"

"Were you speaking to someone out there, Ellen?" called her mother.

"Only to myself," said Ellen heavily, as she went into the room. "If you're feeling better this afternoon I'll get the Florida salt washed out of my hair. It feels heavy and sticky."

"I wish you hadn't cut it so short," fretted Martha, raising herself in the bed. "It's fashionable. I know, but I always liked it down over your shoulders. I'll try to get it, I think. I can sit on the chaise if I can't walk. Such an irony—all my life I abhorred and avoided sick people and now, for my sins, I'm sentenced to be one."

"A nice one, anyway, darling," Ellen had the feeling of parroting words she had said over so many times. "Still, you stay where you are till I boil the things and we'll get that business over. Then I'll dispose of the housekeeping details with Hattie and be free to begin your new book."

In the kitchen Ellen stood and watched the hypodermic syringe bubble and steam on the range. She got the bottle of solution from the refrigerator and warmed it under the tap. Hattie, the middle-aged maid of all work, who had a nervous dread of all things medicinal, watched from a chary distance.

"How long your ma got to take that stuff?" She backed away even farther as Ellen filled the syringe. "Looks like she had enough to kill her now."

"All her life, Hattie. If we stopped these shots, even for a day now, she might sink into a coma and die."

Hattie shuddered. "Miss Ellen, why didn't you catch you a beau down there in Florida? Any girl pretty as you ought to have plenty of men runnin' after 'em."

"Maybe I was born to be a lone spinster, Hattie."

"No'm, you wasn't. That ain't in your eye. You've got a seekin' in your eye. Like your pa. The judge wasn't cut out to be no widow man, neither. There's a fire in 'im too. It's damped down and smolderin' now but it's burnin' just the same, and that same fire burnin' in you, though you do keep it quenched down mighty dutiful."

"Good gracious, Hattie, you make me sound wicked and exciting as a hussy!"

"Nature ain't wicked—not unless it get to runnin' wild."

Ellen, the hypodermic protected with a wad of cotton, went up the stairs a little giddily, as though the implication of Hattie's words had been an intoxicant. She was suddenly thinking of her father as she had never considered him—Malcolm Fowler the man. Always before to her he had been Papa, correct, kind, inclined to be tiresome when he took an oratorical tone, a man the city respected and knew to be honorable and untouchable though his field had been political for many years.

She hurried into the room, sponged her mother's body with alcohol and thrust the saving needle deep.

"Now you'll be fine as silk all day," she patted her. "Hattie's fixing you a luscious-looking salad for lunch and presently I'm going to get you all primmed up beautiful and we'll read the book."

"If it should turn out to have anything nasty in it, Ellen," Martha whispered, "don't tell your father. He'll never read it, and he bought it because he thought I'd enjoy it—and maybe I will. After all, lying here like a—miserable lump, I could stand a little excitement. When you can't have even one small piece of candy, you've no idea how the craving gnaws at you. Night and day sometimes. What they put into a book can't hurt me, but your father would be hurt, and likely as not he'd march the book back and speak a piece to the people at the store. I'll say for Malcolm Fowler that he's pure-minded, if any man ever was, and I'm glad you grow up like him. You'll never know what I've endured, lying here like this!"

"Why, Mamma!" gasped Ellen. "You shock me!"

Martha giggled. "I shouldn't—but it won't hurt you, because you don't have crazy thoughts in your mind. You'll never be tempted even to think of evil—I'm thankful for that. You're like your father . . . but, Ellen, don't be too much like him! Don't grow into a drab, sexless creature. It's bad enough to be forced to be one!"

"Good gracious, Mamma!" Ellen exclaimed. There seemed nothing else to say. But somehow, suddenly, she felt freed.

Joan Iglehart rang the bell at the Fowler house at eleven o'clock. She was all dressed up in the new fall suit Ramsay had nagged her into buying.

Definitely Joan did not care for Martha Fowler, and illness of any sort frightened her. Ellen she considered a dull girl with whey in her veins. Joan, tingling with the excitement of the news she carried, could hardly wait for Hattie to open the door.

"It's all right to do up, isn't it?" She pushed past the maid briskly. "I thought I would come and sit with Mrs. Fowler for a few minutes."

"Yes'm, I reckon," Hattie turned back to the rear of the house.

"Ellen might like to go out for a breath of air," Joan remarked as she headed up the stairs. She tapped at the half-open door above, poked her head in, grinning affably. "Only me," she announced. "I just popped in to say hello."

"Do come in, Mrs. Iglehart," Ellen closed the book and rose. "Sit over here where there's a breeze. It's so warm this morning. Even Mamma feels it."

"It's ghastly hot!" declared Joan, jerking off her coat. "Like a fool I wore this outfit. The trouble is at this time of year you always feel like a fugitive from a rummage sale in summer things. Martha, my dear, you look wonderful. I can't believe you're even sick."

"My silly feet!" sighed Martha. "They swell into great lumps so I can't stand up. Ellen, tell Hattie to bring up something cool to drink."

"Voice" Backers Attempting To Justify Its Huge Costs

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Usually mild-mannered Senator Ernest McFarland, Arizona, the Democratic leader, has laid down the law to colleagues who have been roaming around the country on trips and speech-making engagements.

McFarland has said sternly that this sort of thing must stop if Congress is to adjourn Oct. 1, the latest target date.

The warning was issued only to Democrats. But McFarland let it be known that he would like to have Republicans take note of it.

McFarland has also notified Democratic committee chairmen that he wants them to trim their hearing schedules as much as possible, and not to arrange investigations which would take senators out of Washington.

'Mother Love Vs. Smother Love,' Topic Of Address Made At Child Study Club

Parade Entry Is Selected

Programs for the coming year, fashioned as blue aprons trimmed with white lace and having blue ribbons for ties were presented by Mrs. Larry Best to members of Child Study Club when they met Monday evening in the home of Mrs. Sterling Poling of Saltcreek Township. Mrs. Fritz Sieverts was assisting hostess.

The apron theme was also carried out in an address made by Mrs. Charles Kirkpatrick entitled, "Loosen Mother's Apron Strings," stressing many points, illustrating the difference between "mother love" and "smother love." She said, "There is a world of difference between them; one molds and shapes, the other hammers and dents. Mother love is a gracious gift, the other a chronic imposition."

"One type of mother loves a child, the other primarily loves what she believes to be her love for a child. One is the greatest, finest boon to humanity; the other a pathologic and pathogenic phenomenon; the one a noble emotion, the other an ignoble commotion."

The speaker asked the questions, "When is one grown up? How grown up are you? Did you grow up with your parents help, or in spite of it? and How Tight are your apron strings?" Mrs. Kirkpatrick concluded by admonishing, "Remember that children learn by means of the three X's—example, experience and explanation."

It was announced that the 1951 CCL convention would be held Oct. 4-5 in Dayton; "two days well calculated to be highlights of any mother's year."

Mrs. Kenneth Bell, president of the club, will serve as delegate and Mrs. Dane Patrick was named as alternate. Mrs. Henry Helwagen was appointed treasurer for the coming year.

Names of members' children, eligible for entry in Little Miss Pumpkin Show Parade, were placed in a box and the name of Francine Heiskell drawn to represent the club this year.

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Director

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer has echoed U. S. Secretary of State Acheson's warning that "time is short" in speeding creation of a European defense army.

He told a special cabinet session that he probably will start conferring next week with the Allied high commission on the Western offer of a "peace contract" in return for German troop contributions to an Allied defense structure.

The 75-year-old chancellor also apparently is more optimistic about West German public acceptance of the plan than he was a year ago when the rearmament issue was raised by the Atlantic Pact Council.

Germans generally opposed the idea then, and many of them still do. Those willing to accept, including some German war veterans organizations, also will seek the best bargain possible for Germany.

When French Premier Rene Pleven first tabled a year ago the plan for a European army, as distinct from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's over-all forces, it caused some embarrassment in Washington and London.

THE UNITED STATES military officials since have given the idea their approval, but still believe that the "European army" raises very complex problems such as varying languages, command and supply questions.

Because of these problems U. S. officials would like two modifications of the French plan. One would allow the Bonn government to fix the time for calling up recruits.

A second would have the U. S. Army train these recruits until the European army is actually created instead of being just a paper army.

British aloofness from the European army plan has changed to an attitude of approval.

British objections at first were based on the precedent of another French idea, the Schuman Plan for pooling coal and steel industries in West Europe, as a step toward economic and political federation.

The British idea was that if they were to shun a partial surrender of economic sovereignty then the same objection should be raised against surrendering military sovereignty.

BUT THIS parallel is misleading. Actually under the European plan if Britain joins it is not committing all its armed forces, but merely a European segment of them.

Britain also is fully committed to the defense of Continental Europe under the larger North Atlantic Treaty Organization, of which the European army will be a part.

Britain balked at the Schuman industrial plan because it would have required the Socialist-ruled nation to merge economic policies with the continental neighbors. These policies clash because of Britain's nationalization and rigid home-controlled economy compared to the continental coal and steel industries which are mainly privately owned.

New Idle Pay Claims Showing Decline Here

New claims for unemployment compensation filed in Pickaway County last week dropped to six from 11 for the week before.

Continued claims, however, rose to 26, an increase of three over the previous week.

C. C. Thomas, local Bureau of Unemployment Compensation manager, said that the decline in new claims was general throughout the state.

The state total of new claims filed last week was 6,138, compared to 7,095 for the week before. Continued claims, on the other hand, rose from 30,953 for the week before last to 31,216 last week.

Cattle Feeders To Make Profit Strictly On Efficiency This Year

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19—A leading farm economist has warned livestock men that cattle feeding profits will have to come from efficient operation, not rising prices, this year.

L. H. Simerl of the University of Illinois points out that the bigger parts of profits from feeding have come from constant price boosts since World War II. But now, he says, that premium will be where it belongs—on efficient production.

Simerl observes that farmers who are good cattle feeders will make money in 1951-52, while less able neighbors pay for their experience.

The Illinois economist says that the average of all prices received by farmers is now about twice as high as the 40-year average. Beef prices are about three and a half times this level.

Realizing this, many farmers are getting into what looks like a profitable business. However, the university expert warns that prospective profits from feeding cattle this year are small.

2 Letters Tell The Story Of Erring Mates

CLEVELAND, Sept. 19 — The two letters lying on the kitchen table told the story.

For months George Smith, 29, blinded war veteran, and his married sister knew something was wrong between them and their respective spouses. The letters told them the reason:

The wife of the blinded veteran had run off with the husband of the veteran's sister. They also took Smith's young daughter.

The tale came out yesterday in Cleveland's Cuyahoga County common pleas court when the sister, Mrs. Virginia Cunningham, 27, sued her husband, Charles, 29, for divorce.

She told the judge that her husband had abandoned her, their son Richard, 4, and a daughter, Donna, 8, who is a wheel-chair polio victim. He and Mrs. Pearl Smith, 27, the errant spouses, ran off with four-year-old Karen, so dear to her blind father's heart.

The letters were left by Cunningham on the table of his home on Labor Day. When his wife heard a noise, she investigated and found the letters, one for her and the other for her brother.

"Dear Ginger (to Mrs. Cunningham):

"FOR A LONG time you have been wondering what's wrong with me. Well, now you know. Pearl and I have gone away. You are better off without me. . . Dick."

The other letter, addressed to Smith said:

"Dear George: "I'm sorry to break it to you this way. Don't think too harshly of us. I'm sorry but Karen has to go with me. . . Pearl." Smith makes a living with his government pension and by raising chickens on his small farm.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

Here's something different—a letter from the mother of a high school girl. "How can I help my daughter be more popular?" she asks. Why not send in your tips to this column to help her?

"Could you advise me the best way to help my daughter, aged 17, to be more popular?" she writes. "She is quite shy and at times seems to be lost about how to act toward the opposite sex. She always speaks to boys she knows, but seems sort of abrupt or self-conscious.

"I want her to have parties, but she won't hear of it. She belongs to a few school clubs and to a church organization."

Ans.—Encourage her to join the school clubs that boys belong to and go places where she'll meet and get acquainted with boys as well as girls.

Has she learned to dance? A few private lessons or some practice sessions with a girl friend who is a good dancer will help give her confidence. After she has learned to dance, she should go to dances, no matter how hard it is, at first, to overcome her shyness. Mingling with others her age at dances and other social doings will gradually help her to "mix" more easily.

Be smart! Insure BEFORE the catastrophe and protect your family. Don't delay!

come her shyness. Mingling with others her age at dances and other social doings will gradually help her to "mix" more easily.

Try to help her realize that other girls and boys are shy, too. If she starts a conversation or suggests a set of tennis, most of them will be glad she took the first step to "break the ice."

If she's self-conscious, remind her that others are too busy with their own thoughts and shyness to notice her as much as she might think.

Learning outdoor sports will help. So will inviting several girls to her home after school games, etc. Perhaps later she could include some boys or suggest that the girls bring them. Any other tips, teeners?

Dewey Stresses Need For New Pacific Alliance

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 — Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York has called for immediate creation of a Pacific mutual defense alliance "before it is too late" to head off a total war.

Dewey, in a speech to the American Bar Association, also urged building of a "strong and total" American foreign policy in the Pacific to make the intentions of the free world clear to Communism. He said:

"We must draw a line in the Pacific and put it in a treaty for all to see—just as we have done in the Americas and just as we have done in Europe.

"We must draw that line while we still have brave allies who are not only willing to fight but are actually fighting and winning right now."

The former Republican presidential candidate said the proposed Pacific alliance, to match the North Atlantic Treaty, would make America part of the "greatest alliance in history for peace."

Dewey said the Pacific pact should extend from "Japan, through Southeast Asia on down to Australia and New Zealand."

Dewey declared that rather than separate treaties with nations in that area of 270 million people "it should be one single treaty, all for one and one for all."

Two Engineers Are Added Here By GE Company

The addition of two engineers to the lamp manufacturing quality department has been announced by Ed Grigg, manager of the local General Electric Company plant.

Ted D. Stouffer, a recent electrical engineering graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, has just completed a three-month training period including one week spent at Logan Glass Works and three weeks at the various home office operations at Nela Park, Cleveland.

Stouffer is now doing quality engineering work in the fluorescent coating and parts department.

A veteran of three years with the Army in anti-aircraft and chemical warfare, Stouffer is unmarried.

Having completed graduate work at Ohio State university, James B. Carr joins the engineering staff this week.

Also a veteran of four years Army service, Carr is married and lives on West Mound street. His wife is Mary Ella Carr.

Looking Ahead

By George Benson
President
Hardin College

The owners of the Dollar Steamship Line have discovered that borrowing money from the U. S. government is often helpful but sometimes can be dangerous too.

Getting in debt to the government has cost them one of the most basic of human rights—the right to their own property.

As collateral on a loan from the government they put up the stock and physical assets of their company. Now the principal and interest on their loan has been paid, but the government bureau refuses to return their stock and their steamships.

Upon being informed of what a federal government bureau has done to the Dollar Line owners, almost any American would exclaim: "Oh no! They can't get away with that in our country! But the sobering fact is—they have. The "Dollar Line Case" should be clearly understood by every American. At issue, according to some of the nation's best legal minds, is the question of whether a bureau of the Federal government shall be beyond the reach of constitutional law when it seeks to override basic rights of the citizens.

THE U. S. SECRETARY of commerce and his bureau, the Maritime Commission, have been ordered by the U. S. Court of Appeals in Washington, second highest in the land, to return the Dollar Line stock and property to the owners. Secretary Sawyer and the Commission have not obeyed the order—issued last January. So unrelenting has been their defiance of the high court order that, in a unanimous decision, the same court has assessed civil contempt judgments against Commerce Secretary Sawyer and eight other U. S. officials.

But through one of the most amazing series of legalistic blockades on record, they have escaped jail, have refused to sign over the stock as ordered, and they are in possession of the $68,000,000 steamship line.

It is not my intention to pass judgement on the conflicting claims of the Dollar Line owners and the Maritime Commission bureau.

This nation's second highest court has done that, finding the claims of the line's owners to be true and correct—even the U. S. Supreme Court has twice refused to intervene in carrying out of this judgement.

Here are the bare facts: In 1938 the Dollar Line owed the Maritime Commission $7,500,000, borrowed to build some of its big fleet of passenger liners. The company accused the Commission of withholding normal mail subsidies due it and otherwise attempting to bankrupt the line and gain control through receivership.

In order to forestall the bankruptcy they felt was being pressed upon them, the owners were obliged to put up 91 per cent of the line's stock as collateral and agree to the Maritime bureau taking over control and operation of the company.

This was in August 1938. A short time later the nation's defense effort began and then war broke out in the Pacific. The steamship line, a tremendous asset to our nation at war, operated profitably and within five years the $7,500,000 indebtedness had been paid in full. The Dollar family asked for the return of their stock and property. The Maritime bureau refused. It said it would keep the company and the stock. The Dollar family took recourse of the law and went to court six years ago.

The final determination was the Court of Appeals' unanimous decision last January ordering the Maritime bureau to return the stock and property to the Dollar family, and the U. S. Supreme Court's refusal, twice, to halt this judgement.

One of the most stunning aspects of the case was an order from President Truman, without precedent, actually directing Secretary Sawyer to defy the court's judgement. When Mr. Sawyer obeyed this directive and defied the court, he was in civil contempt and the court said: "Considered upon the plane of high policy and principle, we have the spectacle of a government, which proclaims its adherence to law as a governing force among men, not only refusing for six years to submit to its own courts—but endeavoring by every device to thwart and defeat the judgement of those courts after it has been rendered."

In the American freedom system, the laws and the courts which administer them are the citizen's one great protection of his rights. If they can be defied and thwarted by a powerful individual, or government bureau, or in any manner, freedom cannot exist. Powerful, well-trenched government bureaucracy is a constant danger. Will we control it, or will it control us? That is the grave question of this day.

OPS Launches Drive To Round Up Packers Violating Meat Rulings

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19—The Office of Price Stabilization has launched a drive against packers violating cattle price ceilings and said they will face immediate court action.

Edward P. Morgan, OPS enforcement director, said a special corps of investigators started yesterday a step-by-step check on slaughtering plants in major cities throughout the country in answer to complaints of widespread violations.

Morgan declared the investigators opened their drive by checking plants in Chicago, Cleveland, Philadelphia, and Newark, N. J. He added: "Immediate injunctive action will be taken in United States district courts against all slaughterers found violating OPS regulations."

Mary Garden Says Yankee Opera These Days 'Awful'

LONDON, Sept. 19—Mary Garden, 74-year-old former prima donna, thinks American opera is "awful" and she described today her plans to "shake some life" into it.

The outspoken Scotch-born Miss Garden, who now makes her home in Aberdeen, Scotland, sails on the SS America Monday to the scene of her greatest triumphs—the United States—for a lecture tour which will take her to 24 cities.

But as part of her plan for restoring U. S. opera to what she considers the lost glory of an earlier day, Miss Garden will take time out to hear young American singers competing for music scholarships sponsored by the National Arts Foundation of New York.

Outlining the background for her personal operatic "crusade," Miss Garden said:

"PRESENT-DAY American opera is awful because, in the first place, there are no longer any great philanthropists to pour permental work being done by the New York City Center Opera.

She considers Bing "a clever man who may do something great for American opera."

Of the City Center Opera, Miss Garden says:

"Here is the beginning of something truly exciting. The center may well start a whole new operatic era. It gives young singers a chance and it is shaking some life into opera."

"I hope to help out with that shaking progress when I make my lecture tour."

According to the Department of Agriculture, there are some 80 million cubic feet of gross storage in 11,600 locker plants to handle perishable foods at zero temperatures.

JUG TO BE WORTH $65,000

Floating Dream Slated For Big Test Thursday

Pickaway County's Floating Dream, world's champion pacing filly, goes to the wire Thursday after the 1951 Little Brown Jug and a lion's share of the $65,000 purse.

Staged in conjunction with the Delaware Fair, the Jug will see McKinley Kirk in the sulky back of the Dream.

But the big question on the eve of the Kentucky Derby of pacing is: Will Floating Dream end up behind her top contender, Tar Heel?

This fleet-footed money winner, owned by North Carolina tobacco interests, looks as the probable favorite—and strictly on the basis of one swift heat he ran earlier in the season.

TAR HEEL is one of about 14 sophomore sidewheelers slated to compete in the sport's richest half-mile track race for three-year-olds pacers before an estimated gathering of 35,000 persons.

The Heel is still being lauded for his mile performance of 1:59 4-5 set a few weeks ago in Springfield, Ill., — the fastest turned in by any Jug candidate.

And although none of Tar Heel's victories has been on a half-mile track, observers at the oval course 30 miles north of Columbus are not forgetting he is the only three-year-old pacer to complete a chain of three victories or better.

His latest and last before the Jug was the Reading, Pa., $2,000 free-for-all pace where he

Her Husband, 3 Elephants Said Missing

CLEVELAND, Sept. 19 — Just where does a wife apply for help when her husband and three elephants are missing?

Mrs. James M. Cole of Penn Yan, N. Y., asked the Cleveland police department yesterday to help her round up her missing spouse who was driving a tractor pulling a trailer with the three elephants in it.

When Cole looked back and saw that his wife, who was driving a car with a house trailer, was not behind him, he called police who soon got the husband, wife and three elephants together again. The house trailer had broken down a few hours before.

The Coles, traveling from Grinnell, Ia., where the elephants had performed in a circus, are returning home.

Cleveland AA Gets New Gun

CLEVELAND, Sept. 19—The 179th anti-aircraft artillery gun battalion of the Ohio National Guard, whose duty will be to protect Cleveland from possible air attack, has received its first 90 mm. anti-aircraft gun for training purposes.

The 20-foot long gun arrived yesterday at the Carnegie avenue armory of the guard. The weapon weighs nine tons and can fire between 20 and 28 rounds a minute.

The battery eventually will have four such guns in Cleveland in addition to 50-caliber anti-aircraft machine guns.

These need to be reported as much as a battle in Korea or an error of statesmanship. We need to deal with the corruption of the spirit and the morals of a nation. And not only need we report the evils but the surviving goodness of our people. As long as charity lives in our hearts, we are not a dying people.

May I make this suggestion for the year 1951: That after each of us has contributed to our usual charities, to the community chest, the Red Cross and so on, we select one excellent charity of a group to which we do not belong and we give also to that.

That would be the American way—a cooperative way of varied human beings, each of whom retains his own differences while living in friendship with all his neighbors. That would answer the challenge of a classless society in America.

Colorado Chief To Make Probe

DENVER, Sept. 19—Gov. Dan Thornton today will take a look for himself into the furor surrounding charges of brutality at the Colorado home for dependent children in Denver.

The Denver Post Sunday published statements by former residents of the home and an ex-employee which alleged that children were beaten, put on bread-and-water diets and subjected to other "brutal" punishments.

The institution's board of directors has asked District Attorney Bert Keating for an immediate probe of the charges.
